failures to appear, with some indication that there may be as many as 20. He has spent time in jail for probation violation. He has a history of using false IDs, resisting arrest and lying to police about his identity. The defendant's history reflects a lack of trustworthiness for bond that has never been adequately addressed in the past by conditions of release.

The defendant is committed to the custody of the Attorney General or a designated representative for confinement in a corrections facility separate, to the extent practicable, from persons awaiting or serving sentences or held in custody pending appeal. The defendant must be afforded a reasonable opportunity to consult privately with defense counsel. On order of United States Court or on request of an attorney for the Government, the person in charge of the corrections facility must deliver the defendant to the United States marshal for a court appearance.
